

SAMPLE REPORT - Alex Chen, Marketing Manager (Tech)

TARGET ROLE: Marketing Manager

54

out of 100

"Reads like a job description, not a career story - you're listing tasks, not proving impact."

01 SCORE BREAKDOWN
ATS Compatibility	61/100
Executive Presence	48/100
Clarity	58/100
Strategic Positioning	44/100
Credibility Signals	52/100
Impact Evidence	39/100
Industry Translation	67/100

02 TOP ISSUES
1. No quantified outcomes anywhere - every bullet describes a task, none prove a result.
2. Your summary is generic and forgettable - 'results-driven professional' tells a hiring manager nothing specific.
3. Your target job title doesn't appear in the document, so ATS filters will screen you out before a human sees it.

03 FIRST IMPRESSION

"Busy resume. Not a compelling one."

WHAT YOUR RECRUITER ACTUALLY THINKS:

Mid-level generalist with broad exposure but no clear ownership - nothing stands out in the first pass.

HIREABILITY VERDICT:

Gets past an initial skim but unlikely to make the shortlist without something that makes the reader stop.

04 ATS RISK

Risk Level: Medium

KEYWORD GAPS:

- Your target job title is missing from the document entirely.

FORMATTING ISSUES:

- Skills listed in a comma-separated string that ATS systems frequently misparse.

QUICK FIXES:

- Add your target title to your summary and mirror language directly from the job listings you're applying to.

05 HARD TRUTH

CORE DISCONNECT:

You're applying for a manager role but your resume positions you as an executor - there's a significant difference in how hiring managers read that.

WHAT RECRUITERS ACTUALLY SEE:

Someone capable but unproven at the level you're targeting, with experience that hasn't been framed to show ownership.

WHERE YOUR EXPERIENCE GETS LOST:

Your strongest role gets the same number of bullets as a short contract - the depth is completely buried.

UNINTENTIONAL SIGNALS:

- Passive language throughout signals participant, not driver.

06 EXECUTIVE PRESENCE

Rating: Low - 48/100

LANGUAGE ANALYSIS:

Heavy use of 'managed', 'assisted', and 'supported' positions you as a contributor rather than someone who owns outcomes.

GAPS TO ADDRESS:

- No budget, team size, or scope mentioned anywhere - nothing to anchor your seniority.

HOW TO FIX IT:

Every bullet needs to answer: what changed because you were there - not just what you were responsible for doing.

07 HIDDEN ADVANTAGES

YOUR UNIQUE POSITIONING:

You've built a marketing function from nothing inside a scaling startup - that's genuinely rare and valuable, and your resume doesn't say it.

OVERLOOKED STRENGTHS:

- The Brightwave rebuild story is highly marketable and completely invisible on this resume.

HOW TO AMPLIFY THEM:

- Lead with the outcome of your most significant project, not the list of tasks that made it up.

08 INDUSTRY TRANSLATION GAPS

WHERE YOU LOSE THE READER:

- Your language is task-based where tech hiring managers expect outcome-based framing.

LANGUAGE TO ADOPT:

- Demand generation, pipeline contribution, content-led growth, GTM execution, organic acquisition.

HOW TO REFRAME:

- Each bullet should connect the activity to a business result - traffic, pipeline, conversion, or revenue.

09 REWRITE SUGGESTIONS

Professional Summary

ORIGINAL:

"Results-driven marketing professional with 6 years of experience across digital, content, and brand."

ISSUE:

Generic, unverifiable, and identical to thousands of other summaries - gives a hiring manager no reason to keep reading.

DIRECTION:

Open with your specific value: what you've built, at what scale, and the context you work best in.

Key Achievement Bullet - Brightwave Technologies

ORIGINAL:

"Managed content calendar and oversaw blog production, social media, and email newsletters."

ISSUE:

Describes a process anyone in marketing could claim - there's no outcome, no scale, no proof of contribution.

DIRECTION:

State what you built, the scale you reached, and the business impact - one sentence, specific numbers.

Skills Section

ORIGINAL:

"HubSpot, Salesforce, Google Analytics, Hootsuite, Mailchimp, Canva, WordPress, Asana, Slack, Figma, Trello, SEMrush, Ahrefs, Google Ads"

ISSUE:

14 tools in a flat list signals breadth with no depth, and including Slack and Trello undermines the rest.

DIRECTION:

Restructure as core competencies plus a focused tech stack - remove tools that everyone uses by default.

Agency Role Framing

ORIGINAL:

"Handled client briefs, campaign execution, and monthly reporting for 8 B2B clients."

ISSUE:

'Handled' is the weakest possible verb and 'monthly reporting' describes admin, not strategic value.

DIRECTION:

Frame the agency experience around the commercial outcomes you contributed to, not the deliverables you produced.

Career Objective Line

ORIGINAL:

"Looking for a challenging marketing role where I can apply my skills and grow professionally."

ISSUE:

This line only communicates what you want - not what you offer. It wastes the most-read line on the page.

DIRECTION:

Delete it. Replace with a forward-facing positioning statement about the specific function you want to own.

10 NETWORKING STRATEGY

YOUR APPROACH:

Your highest-leverage move is warm introductions through your existing network - cold applications at this level convert poorly without a referral.

WHO TO TARGET:

- VPs of Marketing and Heads of Content at companies where your background is directly relevant.

CONNECTION MESSAGE TEMPLATE:

"A short, specific note referencing something real about their company - not a template, not a pitch, just a genuine reason to connect."

COMMUNITIES TO JOIN:

- B2B marketing communities where your target hiring managers are already active.

11 POSITIONING STRATEGY

YOUR NARRATIVE ANGLE:

You're not a generalist - you're someone who builds marketing functions from ambiguity into structure, and that's a specific archetype worth owning.

YOUR ELEVATOR PITCH:

"Frame yourself around what you've built and the stage of company you build it best in - that's more compelling than a list of channels you've worked across."

KEYWORDS TO OWN:

HEADLINE:

Marketing Manager | Content Strategy & Demand Generation | SaaS & Tech Growth Stage

ABOUT SECTION:

Your About section needs to open with your most impressive result and build a case for why you're the operator companies at growth stage need.

EXPERIENCE FRAMING:

Every role should lead with what changed because you were there - not what you were responsible for managing.

FEATURED SECTION:

Pin one case study or results snapshot that proves your biggest claim - a blank featured section is a missed opportunity.
